THE DOCTORS' MEETING.

Entertaining Session of the Mason County Medical Society.

The meeting yesterday of the Mason County Medical Society was a gratifying success.

Numerous subjects of practical interest were freely discussed, and everyone present realized that "it was good to be there."

The proceedings were harmonious, instructive and promotive of a closer fellowship.

Dr. Smith of Dover was especially entertaining in his report of cases in practice, showing close observation and method in thought.

Dr. Heaton of Aberdeen, always welcome, lent his cheerful presence again.

Drs. S. Ingraham and A. G. Browning will be essayists at the next meeting, April 25th.

SOCIETY MINSTRELS.

Very Pleasing Entertainment at the Opera-House Last Evening.

Washington Opera-house was comfortably filled last evening by a representative audience which was highly pleased with the "Society Minstrels," a local organization gotten together for the benefit of the West End Mission School.

That Maysville has abundant mineral talent among its ten thousand people was most conclusively demonstrated.

Colonel Thomas D. Slattery, Conversationalist, was perfectly at home in his difficult role, and gave evidence that Fate had erred in trying to make a Lawyer out of a first-class Interlocutor.

The "Tamino" and "Bones"—Mis. Clinckinhead, Corinne Clinckinhead, Etelle Sulser, Alice Kirk and Jessie Bayless, and Messrs. Steve Vaughn and Jim Newell, with Gordon Sulser and John Flanagan, as premier men, were each and all the right people in the right places.

Com. songs by Miss Clinckinhead, John Flanagan and Jim Newell were being followed, while Master Pickett Chun, Robert J. Ille-set, T. Reed Chun and Gordon Sulser rendered beautiful ballads, sentimental and topical.

Miss Nettie Newell was easily the star of the evening with an up-to-date stump speech in behalf of every woman's inalienable right to capture and subjugate a man.

The club swinging by Professor Hugo was not only excellent—it was artistic—and he was obliged to respond to a hearty encore.

Miss Florence Wadsworth sang a gay matrinal, followed by "I Know a Lady," both of which were heartily applauded.

The "Choir Boy" by Master Pickett Chun, with R. L. Hoeftlich at the organ, was beautiful and impressive.

The one of the leading features was the dual dance by Misses Patti Carr and Julia Perrine, the little ladies acquitting themselves handsomely.

The final was a cake walk, in which four couples participated, Mr. Andrew M. January and Mrs. T. M. Bassett "taking the cake" by a most pronounced majority.

Altogether, the entertainment was a credit to all who so kindly lent their services in aid of such a worthy cause, and for its success much praise is due Mrs. Ernie White and the good people who assisted in promoting it.

The gross receipts were $151.45, which will net about $90 for the Mission.

Fleming Fiscal Court convenes next Tuesday.

Going Down Hill.

People suffering from kidney diseases find a gradual but steady loss of weight, until they are reduced to nothing. The Foley's Kidney Cure. It is guaranteed. J. Jas. Wood & Son and Armstrong & Co.

We have a tendency in commanding children to let them do what we like, as we know and popular papers, of Petersburg, Va.
We have given it to our children when troubled with colds and coughs, and it has been a great relief. It is equally effective in croup and whooping cough, and in the development of colds and coughs. It can be used as a poultice for the nose and throat, and will be present at the Washington Opera house on Saturday, March 31st.
Seat now on sale at Nelson's.

"HE SEEN HIS DUTY AND HE DONE IT!"

Lexington Leader.

Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge was at his best in his editorial in The Herald on Monday morning on the judicial theft of the Governorship of Kentucky.
His tribute to Judge Field is one of the keenest and most delicious bits of satire we have seen in many a day.
The article is so timely and readable that we take the liberty of reprinting it in full. It follows:

JUDGE FIELD DID HIS DUTY.

Last Saturday afternoon Judge Field signed the judgment that Governors Taylor and Marshall were usurpers and were not entitled to the offices to which they were respectively elected; and proper steps were taken for the appeal and superseded bonds were executed; so these officers for the present still remain in the offices to which the voters elected them. For even if they be judicially declared to be usurpers it does not alter the fact that they were elected by the voters. This judgment and bond take this action out of the Court presided over by Judge Field.

It was well that this judgment was entered on Saturday so that Judge Field could have a whole Sunday for rest and recuperation.

Judge Field is a Kentuckian who loves her honor, is devoted to her property and deeply interested in her liberty. He is an honest man, a dutiful citizen, a born freeman, a conscientious Democrat who believes in the rule of the people as expressed through the ballot-box; he is a gentleman of honor, truthful and loving the truth. It was indeed the irony of fate, the cruelty of destiny, that such a man should find it his unavoidable duty as Judge to give sanctity to a falsehood and put the imperishable stain of dishonesty upon his state.

Of course, as Judge he was forced by the dictates of judicial conscience which would hear of no evasion —to declare the law as he found it; and he found that law to be inflexible, that under the Constitution the Legislature had the sole and unquestioned right to hold a sham trial, to select by fraudulent act and conspiracy the Boards of Contest; decide contrary to the testimony actually heard, and rule the elected of the offices to which they were elected and give those offices to those elected at the polls; that the journals deliberately falsified to state what was false to make out a case were sacred; that meetings never held and acts never performed became solemn meetings which could not be challenged and acts which gave higher titles to offices than a plurality of votes at the polls.

As far as he was concerned, he was forced by the dictates of judicial con-

the terrible anguish which a brave, verebrate and loyal freeman must have suffered when he realized that it was his bounden, unavoidable duty to make a decision which sanctified such falsehood and fraud; which gave judicial sanction to such a travesty on justice and right; which overruled the institutions of his state and debarred the electoral system by making the truth into a lie.

And how this anguish must have been increased—if that were possible—that to accomplish this false and fraudulent result in his city, his daily associates, his friends, his colleagues on the bench, the lawyers who practiced before him, the people who honored him were disfranchised upon baseless and offensive grounds, while he knew of his personal knowledge were at once faced and insulting; charges which, if true, stained the honor of his friends, his brother lawyers and his city.

He is indeed entitled to the keenest condemnation and the profoundest sympathy. The Spartan boy who stood the three teeth of the hidden fox; the patriot whose heart breaks at the ruin of his country; the freeman who has in vain fought for liberty; the gentleman who must connive at a lie; Brutus condemning his son; David lamenting the death of Absalom, are but faint types of the indescribable grief and inutterable sorrow of this gentleman when he found himself shut up by inexorable fate to the rendition of such a judgment.

A more sensitive and less heroic Judge might have resigned before signing its name thereto; a less clear-sighted Judge with oblique vision might not have seen the law so clearly; a more aggressive Judge might have broken down precedents and refused to be bound by them; a more subtle Judge might have found other precedents and constructed an argument persuasive and plausible, even though unsound; that in a Court of justice it is never demanded to sanctify falsehood and give judicial sanction to fraud; that any course of reasoning which makes the truth a lie is illogical and illegal. But his intellect was too lucid to be confused by any such reasoning; his learning did not find any precedent save on one side; and his courage forbade a cowardly resignation to avoid his duty. He is therefore entitled to the admiration as well as the commiseration and sympathy of the state.

It is to be hoped that the restful hours of a holy Sabbath—hours spent in con-munion with holy influences and soothing surroundings have given peace to the wounded spirit, rest to the perturbed soul and comfort to the sorrowing heart.

Are you sick? If so, investigate the medicine, the dose is small, yet it quickly produces the most gratifying results.
If you are not sick, it will keep you from getting sick. It is a safe medicine.
